MOTION

SEN. CHRISTMANN MOVED that a committee of two be appointed to escort Consul General Martin Loken of Canada to the rostrum, which motion prevailed. The President appointed Sens. Olafson and Triplett.

REMARKS OF CONSUL GENERAL MARTIN LOKEN OF CANADA

Thank you, President Wrigley, and to all Senators, for inviting me to speak. It's a tremendous honor to join you to celebrate the North Dakota-Canada partnership.

Across three centuries, our countries have progressively developed the closest, warmest, most integrated and most successful relationship in the world. We are partners, neighbors, allies and most of all, we are true friends.

All this holds particularly true right here in North Dakota, where we share a long, secure border that's a gateway for extensive business and personal ties.

Not only is the U.S. Canada's major export market, Canada is also America's largest export market – larger than China, larger than Mexico, larger than Japan or all the countries of the European Union combined. We have the biggest two-way trading relationship in the world, with about $600 billion in goods and services crossing our border last year.

North Dakota is one of 34 U.S. states that looks to Canada as its largest customer. In fact, last year over 60% of your exports went to Canada. Two-way trade in goods alone was about $3.6 billion in 2010, or approximately $5,000 for every man, woman and child in North Dakota.

Trade means jobs. More than 8 million across the US and some 21,400 in North Dakota alone are supported by Canada-US trade. And more jobs still are tied to the important investments that we have in each others' countries. Our economies are so closely integrated that "we make things together", rather than just sell things to one another. And I think there's great potential to do more, especially right here in our continent's Heartland.

I wish to commend you -- the state's hardworking Senators, as well as the administration, the business community and many, many others for the way you have navigated your great state through difficult times in the global economy. Your low unemployment rate and your growing, diverse and resilient economy are the envy of many.

Similarly, Canada has weathered the recession better than most. We have a strong financial sector and our recovery is well on track. We look forward to creating jobs and increasing trade and investment opportunities within the highly integrated North American economy. This requires that we do all we can to keep markets open to the benefit of our citizens and avoid protectionist measures that only serve to restrain job growth and slow our collective economic recovery.

Mr. President, we can't talk about the Canada-US relationship, or the North Dakota-Canada relationship, without referring to energy. Canada is your country's largest, most secure, most stable, and friendliest supplier of oil, natural gas, electricity, and uranium. The United States imports far more oil from Canada than from any other country in the world – more than from Saudi Arabia and Kuwait combined, more than from Venezuela and Iraq combined.

Our energy infrastructure, including oil and gas pipeline networks and electricity grids, is tightly integrated and is a foundation for North American energy security. Like North Dakota, Canada is fortunate to have tremendous energy resources. Canada's oil sands comprise the third-largest oil deposit in the world with more than 175 billion barrels of reserves.

To develop the oil sands resource and to meet the energy security needs of the US, new pipeline construction and technology development provide jobs, revenue and other benefits to North Dakotans. The proposed Keystone XL pipeline, along with existing Canadian pipelines, offers much-needed access to markets for your state's rapidly growing production of oil from the Bakken, and other fields, some of which extend across the border to Canada.

At the same time, North Dakota and Canada are aggressively researching and investing in various renewable energy technologies; and the world's largest carbon capture and storage project has been operating across our border for over ten years. Together, we are leaders in responsible North American energy production and transmission.

Our strong partnership with North Dakota might be traced back to 1800 when a trade route was established between Canadian fur trading posts near Lake Winnipeg to the Native American villages along the Missouri river. Since then, our people-to-people ties have grown spectacularly. Hockey and baseball teams, high school choirs and weekend shoppers travel back and forth across our border by the tens of thousands.

Our two nations have grown up together and we have forged ties that run wide and deep at the local and national levels. Because we have much in common, our national interests throughout history have often intersected. Our friendship has been manifested in the defense of our shared values when Canadian and US soldiers have fought and died together in many conflicts, including, more recently, Afghanistan. I want to take this opportunity to honor the brave military personnel from North Dakota who serve around the world in the name of freedom and those who have made the ultimate sacrifice.

Mr. President, as I mentioned, our long, secure border is a gateway for extensive business and personal ties. Canadian and US law enforcement officials – including the Grand Forks sector of the US Border Patrol, cooperate closely and successfully to address threats to our countries. And this will continue. And when it comes to our common border, there is perhaps no more beautiful tribute to border cooperation anywhere in the world than the International Peace Garden established in 1932 honoring the friendship between our nations.

Mr. President, as we all know, we anticipate a very difficult Spring this year when it comes to flooding, particularly in the Red River Basin. We all want to minimize harm from flooding. Recent discussions between leaders in the region have led to a renewed level of cooperation on shared water issues – including Devils Lake. We must continue to assume a spirit of cooperation as we look for solutions to water challenges, including flooding. By continuing to work closely together, we are better placed to ensure that our shared resources are protected for all, including generations to come.

In closing, let me underline that my office looks forward to continuing to work with North Dakota legislators and with Governor Dalrymple's administration to do everything we can to enhance our linkages. Building on the strength of our ties, the future looks very bright indeed. I'm delighted that Rod Backman works with my office as Canada's Honorary Consul in North Dakota. We thank Rod for all that he does, including helping to make this "Canada Day at the North Dakota Capitol" a reality.

Mr. President and Senators, thank you for celebrating our relationship, for passing the resolution declaring "Canada Day at the State Capitol" and for the great honor you have extended my country in inviting me to speak. I hope you and your staffs will join us later today as we continue to celebrate with a reception at the Ramkota. Merci beaucoup. Thank you very much.
